

Fellow Geologists and Earth Scientists,

The St Bede's Geology Department would like to invite you to our annual Christmas Lecture on Monday 3rd December 2018. This year's guest speaker is professor Christopher Jackson who is a lecturer at The Imperial College of London and will be delivering a lecture on Jungle Volcano; The Descent into Nyiragongo. As Christopher Jackson has just finished a documentary with the BBC on Nyiragongo's volcano he is the perfect guest speaker for our Christmas lecture. In this documentary Christopher camped around an 800 degree lava lake and in his lecture will talk about his experience, something we are all looking forward to.

The lecture will begin at 7:30pm and is held in the Academic Hall of St Bede's College. The lecture will last approximately 1 hour and there will be a short Q and A afterwards, open to all attendees. To book tickets for this event please contact Head of Geology, Mr. Parker at mparker@stbedescollege.co.uk

Entry is free, however there are limited spaces and early bookings would be much appreciated. There will also be a stall set up for the Geology Department's charity, The School Under The Tree Which provides schooling for some of the world's poorest children and any donations will be greatly appreciated.

We look forward to seeing you there.

Yours Sincerely,

The St Bede's Collage Christmas Lecture Committee
